NAMAKA

The hot weather during the past week has had great effect and the crops are looking fine.

J. C. Peterson has been visiting Harlow Brown. He has bought a section of land near Coronation.

Mrs. White entered the ladies of the Red Cross society to an day sewing party last Thursday.

The net proceeds of the dance held in the I.O.O.F. Hall on May 24th was $53.50. This has been donated to the funds of the Namaka branch of the Red Cross society.

A dance will be held on Friday next, 14th inst. in Mr. J. B. Sin's barn, kindly lent for the occasion, to all of the funds of the Red Cross. Admission, guests $1, ladies 50c. To Namaka school trustees have been busy improving the school grounds this year. A new fence has been put up and the school kaleidnised inside and all cleaned out. The school looks much better and it will be nice for the children to have school free from flies. The school grounds are looking very nice.

The men at the end of the day can do a lot of killing these boys—wounds.

Big Meeting Next Saturday 3 P.M.

The Call has been requested by quite a number of our most prominent farmers to ask all the farmers and towns people to be present at 3 o'clock next Saturday afternoon—June 15th—in the Town Hall to re-organize the Gleichen Agricultural Association and arrange to hold a fair this year. Already quite an interest has been manifested as no one would like to see the grounds forfeited with all the work expended upon them and the buildings, and the meeting promises to be well attended. The C. P. R. has offered to assist in every possible way provided that the local people will show an interest and try to make a success of the exhibition and the association generally. The Alberta Legislature can be counted on making a grant so soon as we show we mean business. Be present and bring your friends.

Local and District News

It is hot.

The Lambert Producing Co. will dig something extra in drains in the Gleichen Opera House July 2nd, "The Other Man's Wife".

Enquiries are being made as to what has happened our excellent snowed correspondent. He will be heard from by next week.

Our baseball boys have been enjoying some good practices with the Valsen, Bassano, Carleton and their burgo and will shortly be in shape for a real match.

By mistake the little two-year-old boy of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph fell from the top of the Friday evening. During the night two brought him to town and Dr. Ross and Farrington were called in. They succeeded in saving him completely and that evening reported him passed danger from the effects of the fall. Saturday night the parents took him on the train to a Calgary hospital, where the little fellow died at noon Sunday. The boy was very strong, burning his face where he had wiped it from his mouth, and as he got some of it in his lungs they were in a very bad condition. The greatest sympathy is expressed for the sorrowing parents.

Every right thinking person is anxious to assist the recruiting office in their work and make it easy for them, but a few officers make it hard for themselves by the manner in which they approach people, while it is a pleasure to meet many of them. A good deal of complaint locally is made of one, not only of his gruff manner, but of his profane language. This man is being sent in person any way and does not command the respect we all like to regard officers and soldiers with, especially at this time. Be gentle, be brave, be true.

It was with deep regret the announcement came of the death of Mrs. J. F. B. Sin's daughter, Monday night, June 10th, at the farm near Cluny, where she resided for about six years with her husband and three children, aged seven, twelve and fourteen years respectively. She had been ill for six or seven years with tuberculosis, and, therefore, the cause was not unexpected. The remains have been shipped to Calgary, where the funeral takes place today, Thursday, and services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in St. James's church, Fourteenth Avenue West. Deceased was born in Manchester, England.

Now is the time to fix the weeds.

Real estate was moving Monday with the wind.

The Opera House was crowded to see "The Kaiser's" show last Friday evening, which were very good, but most of those present would have a more tragic ending.

The Royal Hawaiian, a novelty, musical and vocal attraction, is coming to the Gleichen Opera House June 25. Everyone else will want to hear and see these world-famous entertainers.

Dan McLeod won the hat as an auto salesman.

On page 4 of this issue will be found an exact copy of the register. In fact, all of 15 years, male, female, in Canadian-born fill in on page 22nd next. Read it carefully and get your certificate for your own benefit.

CHAPTER I. The Wager

A fine limousine stopped quietly at the corner of Brown street, May-day, and, as quietly, stole away again into the gathering fog. Its occupant, having alighted and walked off with-out a word to the chauffeur, made his way along the select thoroughfare to the door of Number Nineteen, where he was admitted, almost before he had withdrawn his finger from the bell-push, by a lackey in gorgeous livery. It was past mid-night, and there was no one about in the street, or a slight hitch in this otherwise smoothly-run proceeding might have furnished food for conjecture.

Quick as was the response to the summons of the bell, the door was opened by the merest crack till the janitor recognized the visitor, when it was flung wide, with a murmur of respectful greeting, to be closed behind him with equal swiftness.

"Mr. Gaspard is in his office?" curtly demanded the newcomer as he handed his hat and overcoat to a second man in livery. "No, do not trouble to announce me. I know the way."

Crossing the small but beautifully appointed entrance hall, he passed into a room where a baldheaded man in evening dress sat at a pedestal table jotting down figures in an account book. At sight of his visitor he rose, and in the manner of his rising there was more than a hint of servile alacrity.

"Oh, how d'ye do, Mr. Morgan?" he said with a nervous eagerness which clashed oddly with his full new top. "Do sit down and smoke a cigarette before the fun begins. They will be dropping in directly. You are a little before your usual time, I think."

Mr. Jasper Morgan, who also wore evening clothes, not perhaps quite so carefully groomed as those of his host, ignored the effusive courtesy. He was a tall, strongly-built man of forty. To the average observer, his general appearance would have conveyed the impression of a self-made plutocrat from the provinces—say of a cotton magnate from Lancashire, or a coal king from Newcastle. A closer observer, noting various trifling discrepancies, might have concluded that that was the impression which he wanted to convey.

"I wished a word with you about young West—Sir Anthony West," he said. "You have been cashing his acceptances lately. To what amount do we hold them?"

Louis Gaspard referred to the book upon which he had been engaged. "A mere trifle," he replied. "Something over three hundred pounds."

"Well, you are to understand that he has reached his limit," said Mr. Morgan. "If he loses tonight don't take his paper, see. Not even a check. Gold or Bank of England notes, and if he hasn't got them put the stopper on him. Sir Anthony West is in Quercy street."

"Very good, sir; I will attend to the matter," the baldheaded man rejoined, and the words no less than the manner were those of a servant addressing his master.

And this was exactly the relationship between the two well-dressed, well-fed men met in conference in the room which Louis Gaspard called his office. For, though there was no difference in its outward appearance from that of its neighbors in the aristocratic street, Number Nineteen was a fashionable gambling house, run for and frequented by the highest players in London. There was nothing of the raffish night club about the establishment, which was conducted on the most respectable lines. Though refreshments could be had no profit was made out of them. No one ever got drunk or noisy inside those discreet portals. The cards and the cards alone were the magnets which drew all sorts and conditions of men and women to this cozy Temple of Chance in the heart of Mayfair. The only passport to an entrance was the possession of money to lose.

To avoid complaints certain rules were enforced. No vehicles were allowed to drive up to the house. Patrons were set down at the corner of the street to make their way on foot to the carefully attended door, and so also they departed in the small hours of the morning—stealthily and unobtrusively, whether cleared out or with bulging pockets. The habitués themselves were the most careful guardians of the privacy of Number Nineteen, and did nothing to endanger its continuance. If they had won they wanted to come again and win more; if they had lost they wanted to come again and make good. The house had been in working order for a year, yet the police had no suspicion of what was going on. Mr. Gaspard, the nominal tenant, was supposed to be a private gentleman of large means—a sprig of the old French nobility, as his name seemed to denote.

But, let there be no secret about it, Mr. Louis Gaspard was French only in name and by remote extraction, and he owed his present position as occupier of Number Nineteen to suave and genial manners and to the fact that he had a conjurer's fingers and could deal cards with deadly precision. The rascal was only a figurehead, the real proprietor of the gaming house being the Mr. Jasper Morgan who, was so preternaturally instructing him.

An expensively dressed young woman, whose bold beauty was of the voluptuous type, looked into the room, and seeing the two men engaged, would have withdrawn had not Mr. Morgan stopped her.

"Don't run away, Miss Gaspard," he said. "I have finished my business with your father."

"I did not know that you were here," the girl replied, shaking hands. "I came to tell father that the guests are beginning to arrive. Sir Anthony West and Mr. Kenyon are in the drawing room, and Mrs. Leslie Vigers was being shown in as I crossed the hall."

"Then you had better go and take charge, Gaspard," came Morgan's brusque order. "I have something to say to your daughter, but we will join the company before you start the play."

As soon as they were alone together Laura Gaspard shot a tentatively coquettish glance at her father's secret backer. But Jasper Morgan quickly demolished any hopes she might have formed that she had found favor with the financier of the gaming house. During the ten minutes' conversation which ensued he was not in the least amorous, but very practical and businesslike. And he treated this alluring siren with almost as much contemptuous indifference as he had accorded to her father.

But at the end of the brief interview Miss Gaspard appeared to be perfectly satisfied. Her fine eyes sparkled with pleasurable anticipation as Morgan gave her his arm to conduct her to the large double drawing room on the first floor where gaming took place.

The brilliantly-lit room was thronged now with the people for whom Jasper Morgan catered through his plausible representative, while posing as a mere frequenter of the resort. The sexes were about equally balanced in Louis Gaspard's clientele, but it was noticeable that the men were a more mixed lot than the women. The latter, almost without exception, bore the stamp of high breeding, while among the male habitués were not a few whose only claim to admission could be their well-stuffed pocket books. This caste cleavage was part of a carefully considered system. Men were good losers, whatever their rank. Mr. Morgan was wont to say when discussing matters of policy with his lieutenant, but women were apt to make trouble unless they had social position at stake. Thus it was that a singular decorum was the prevailing note of this resort where fortunes were often lost and never won.

Every Saloon an Enemy Fort

It is folly supreme to pass laws which enable the government to take a man's factory, his business, his savings, his house, his automobile, his body itself, and to deny to the government the right to turn down his beer glass.

The country must act upon the assumption that the war is on for long years, requiring every cent of available money, every pound of available food, every ounce of available labor and every unit of brain power.

Every saloon is an enemy fort, every brewery a national menace, every bonded warehouse an arsenal for our foe, as long as it turns food into poison.—Clarence True Wilson, D.D.

To Aid in Food Problem

A western farm journal publisher has organized a league of better and greater food production. Every boy and girl between the ages of 10 and 18 years may join by signing an enlistment pledge, promising his or her best efforts for food production and conservation this year. Prizes will be given for the best results. Every member is required to write the story of his or her achievement, which will count in awarding the prizes.

Prussia Puffed Up

The Old Conviction That the Germans are the Salt of the Earth

The truth is, that events in the East have filled the Prussian Junkers with pride. They regret only one thing—the resolution of July 19, 1917. The twenty-fifth meeting of the German Agrarian league illustrated the extent of this pride. There was the old tone of joy in brutal force, the old conviction that the Germans are the salt of the earth. A few extracts from the speeches may be of interest:

"As long as the enemy sees the majority resolution of July 19 supreme, we shall have no peace."

"Germany's future can only be secured by a strong monarchy and a mighty army."

"What we have lacked hitherto is a healthy national selfishness."

"One cannot get away from the impression that God must have been angry when he made this man (Bethmann-Hollweg) imperial chancellor."

"Only fools believe in a reconciliation of the peoples."

"The ruffians in and out of Germany who stir up bitter feeling against Hindenburg and Ludendorff are not worthy to tie their shoe laces."

"This war is a struggle for world domination."

This pride manifests itself in a large part of the German press. "The First Victorious Peace" is how reference is made to the peace with the Ukraine; the peace with the Bolsheviks will doubtless be the second. This is harmless enough, but their overweening pride makes these gentry presumptuous. No one in Germany, so the Hamburgischer correspondent assures the world, ever intended to reduce France to a second-rate power or to starve out England. But today it is different. These two countries want the war to continue; they place the Germans before the alternatives "You or we." If fighting is to go on throughout 1918, which Germany honestly desired to be a year of peace, then she will not be answerable for the consequences.

German conceit shows itself in yet another way. For some time past there has been little talk of indemnities in Germany. Now indemnities are again a will o' the wisp for the Junkers. In the Bavarian diet recently Count Preysing wanted to know whether the large German war debt was to be shifted on to the shoulders of the enemy. The war expenditure now amounted to a sum equivalent to 65,000 million pounds sterling. If the enemy cannot be made to bear this load, there will be nothing for it but for the government to confiscate wealth. But Count Preysing is after all only a mere member of the house. What did the government say in reply?

The Bavarian minister of finance, Dr. von Breuninger, informed the anxious count that of course the burden would be shifted on the enemy if the military and political situation allowed the imperial government to do so.—From Land and Water.

Wonderful Red Cross Diamond

The Most Wonderful Diamond Known Has Been Donated to the Red Cross

On first thought it seems inappropriate to talk about a wonderful new diamond in war times. But the fact that this diamond has been donated to the British Red Cross makes it not only proper but necessary to speak of it at some length. For four years there has been a Red Cross sale at Christy's in London and each year some entirely unexpected treasure has formed the centre of interest.

It is a recently no attraction was presented for this year. But quite unexpectedly appeared this wonderful diamond, of the palest exquisite primrose yellow and of enormous weight for a diamond—surpassing all the famous diamonds known, except the "Stars of South Africa" (in the imperial crown) and the Mattan diamond belonging to the Rajah of Borneo.

The famous Koh-i-noor in Queen Mary's crown weighs only 108 carats; the Regent or Pitt diamond, famous up to this time as being the only diamond showing a Maltese cross in the top facet, weighs 1364 carats. The new diamond which weighs 205 carats is in the shape of a perfect square and shows a perfect Maltese cross in its top facet. It has the power of absorbing the rays of any brilliant illumination to which it is exposed and afterwards emitting them in phosphorescent light in the dark. The diamond was found in the De Beers Mines in Griqualand West in 1901. So far it has not been named but will probably be known as the Red Cross Diamond.

To Save Grain From Fire

A builder of grain elevators suggests that in order to save wheat and other grain in food elevators in the event of fire, every bin should be provided with a trap door in the outer wall of the building, so arranged that in case of fire the door could be pulled open and the grain there thrown out on the ground. By quick cheap alterations to many existing elevators he believes it would be possible to save much grain now lost in fires.

St. Catharines, Ont.—"Over forty years ago I was restored to health by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It was after medicine and doctors had failed to help me or give relief. I had, through overwork, become all run-down in health. I was weak and finally became a nervous wreck. The 'Prescription' was recommended to me, and at the time I started to take it I had not been able to do anything for over a year. I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' as well. It took several bottles, but I was completely restored to good health and since that time when I have felt the need of these medicines I have taken them and always with perfect satisfaction."—Mrs. WM. Hard to Maintain Neutrality

The Last Remaining Neutrals of the World

The only countries still neutral are Spain, Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden in Europe; Argentina, Mexico and a few small republics in the Western Hemisphere.

How long Spain will maintain her neutrality is a matter of conjecture. Already German submarines have sunk Spanish ships in sufficient numbers to threaten the industries and commerce of the country. The sentiment at the court of Madrid is frankly pro-ally. Germany has however, created a strong feeling in her favor which finds expression in anarchistic uprisings against the government, backed by money from Wilhelmstrasse. There has arisen recently a wave of revulsion against Germany. Only last month the United States concluded an agreement by which the armies under General Pershing would receive a portion of their supplies from Spain and in return for this the Spanish people were to get cotton and other raw products from America.

The Netherlands is undoubtedly maintaining its neutrality through fear of Germany, but there is a limit to Dutch endurance and further belligerency on the part of Berlin might easily bring Holland into the struggle on the side of the allies. Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries are also maintaining their neutrality for the same cause. Their ships have been sunk and acts of piracy committed which have been borne without a murmur. So far as Denmark is concerned the court is said to be pro-German, while the people through the losses they have incurred and the indignities they have had to put up with have become pro-ally. For a time the sentiment in Sweden was frankly pro-German, but there is no doubt that there has been a considerable modification of this feeling since the first few months of the war. Norway is strongly pro-ally but is dreadfully afraid of the Teuton.

Exposure of the German plot last September showed plainly that the diplomatic circles in Argentina were pro-German. The situation there is peculiar. The army officers and government officials favor the cause of Germany; the people, on the other hand, are pro-ally. Time and again have efforts been made to introduce a declaration of war against Germany, but it has not gone through. Germany is deluging the country with propaganda. The people at the railroads are being incited to strikes to prevent the shipments of grain to the allies. These strikes have, however, been traced, and if anything have increased the feeling of bitterness and anger against the Germans.

Mexico is neutral in so far as she has not declared her stand against any of the belligerents. It is well known that German money is being spent in the country but the usual state of chaos in which the country habitually finds itself does not make its entrance into the war probable.

The other countries which have not yet broken with the Teutons are Chile, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Paraguay and Venezuela.

Fourteen altogether—that is the number of nations which remain, at least in name, neutral.

Freedom of Labor and Capital Prevention of Industrial Troubles During the War

The plan to make strikes or boycotts unlawful during the period of the war should not be represented as labor's or capital's victory. Concessions were made by both, resulting in what may be called a victory for the freedom of both.

The report submitted by the war labor conference, appointed by Secretary of Labor Wilson, outlines a program for the prevention of industrial troubles during the war, and contains provisions that should insure industrial peace when the war is over. Each side agrees to lay aside its most powerful weapon—the strike and the lockout—for the period of hostilities. Employers are not to discharge workers because of union membership, and workers are not to use coercive measures to induce persons to join their unions or compel employers to bargain with them. All these provisions might well become a permanent part of the new industrial order.—From Leslie's.

Iceland May Secede

Berlin Reports Is That Country May Form Republic

According to a Copenhagen despatch, the Vossische Zeitung, Berlin, publishes the following statement: "Denmark fears that Iceland may secede and declare itself a republic. British influence in Iceland is extraordinarily strong and it is believed that the new republic will later attach itself to Great Britain. Everything Danish in Iceland is systematically suppressed by the English, who by the expenditure of great sums of money have created a feeling in favor of England."

Reuter's news agency is officially informed that there is not a word of truth in the statement contained in the article in question with regard to "great sums of money," which England is supposed to be spending, and that the only possible foundation for such an allusion is the fact that Great Britain has purchased the fish catch of Iceland.

U. S. Congress and Ireland

The Day of "Tailtwisting" Is Happily Past

The decision of the house committee on foreign affairs not to give public hearings on the various resolutions dealing with Irish affairs is eminently sensible. Mr. Flood, the chairman, very properly points out that any consideration of such resolutions "might well be considered as constituting an interference with the internal affairs of another nation," a co-belligerent, as well as an embarrassment to the United States. The purpose to attack England in debate is undisguised and nothing but harm could come of it. The day of "tailtwisting" is happily past. Moreover, it would be a poor service to Ireland at a time when the settlement of the home rule question is in her own hands to make the floor of congress the scene of discussion of the subject. Many of those who favor these resolutions are undoubtedly sincere if injudicious. Others are "professional Irishmen" whose chief purpose is to make mischief.—From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Irrigation Convention Nelson, July 24 to 26

The Western Canada Irrigation Association, which holds its twelfth annual convention this year at Nelson, B.C., British Columbia, is a somewhat unique organization. There is no membership fee, no profits and no dividends. The association is supported in its work by grants from the governments and institutions interested in developing the resources of Western Canada. Its functions are largely educational, although by centralising public opinion with regard to irrigation problems the association is also able to bring to bear an important influence towards improving the conditions under which irrigationists must labor. The place which the association occupies in public estimation may be judged from the fact that it has the honor of the patronage of his Royal Highness The Duke of Connaught and of Strathmore, and His Excellency The Duke Devonshire, Governor General of Canada. The Honorary ary President is the Hon. Arthur Meighan, K. C., Minister of the Interior, and the President is the Hon. H. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands in the British Columbia Government. The honorary presidents are the Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, and Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture for Saskatchewan. The last Vice-president is the Hon. H. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands in the British Columbia Government, himself an extensive farmer and irrigationist and the 2nd Vice-president is Mr. G. R. Manroch, president of the Lethbridge Board of Trade, which has distinguished itself for the interest taken agricultural problems and the practical means adopted to improve the conditions under which the farmers of Southern Alberta labor. The chairman of the Executive Committee is Mr. F. H. Auld, Deputy Minister of Agriculture in Saskatchewan, and with whom on the Executive are associated Messrs. J. L. Brown of Vancouver, who was one of the moving personages in the Kamloops convention two years ago; James Johnston, of Nelson, who was the honor of holding the world's prize for certain varieties of irrigated fruit and to whose efforts the selection of the site of Nelson for this year's convention was largely due; W. E. Scott, Deputy Minister of Agriculture in British Columbia; A. S. Dawson, chief engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway National Resources; F. H. Peters, Dominion Government Commissioner of Irrigation; R. C. Williamson, practical rancher and irrigationist of Maple Creek, and F. P. E. Wollaston, manager of the Childress Estates, at Vernon, B. C. and 30 years a successful irrigationist in the Okanagan Valley. The permanent secretary, Norman E. Rankin, is conversant with the irrigation forces, and in his absence Robert J. C. Stead, more widely known to the public for his Western Canadian literary productions, is the acting secretary.

For the purpose of bringing to bear the necessary local knowledge and conditions a local board of control has been organized at Nelson, of which F. A. Starkey, president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Southern B. C. is chairman, and J. C. Annable, former mayor of Nelson, is secretary.

Steps have already been taken toward the preparation of the 1918 program, which gives some idea of the addresses will be of a very high order from speakers well qualified to discuss the subjects allotted to them.

Although the meetings of the Western Canada Irrigation Association are serious business gatherings the opportunity to combine business with pleasure is never overlooked and this will be possible to an exceptional degree at the Nelson convention this summer. No more beautiful holiday resort could have been selected for this gathering and the Nelson people are now setting themselves out to make preparations for entertainment on a scale which, while it will be in keeping with the war spirit of the host city, will also be the hospitality for which the pioneer, the prospector and the rancher are famous.

The convention should prove particularly attractive to farmers from the prairie provinces who will be afforded an opportunity of learning many things their problems discussed by men who have made life studies of them and who at the same time may enjoy for themselves and the members of their families a very enjoyable outing in the mountain and lake region of Southern British Columbia.

You and all your friends should be at the Town Hall at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

BUY AN IRRIGATED FARM FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY BECAUSE:

Irrigation makes the farmer independent of rainfall, and in sure good crops, not occasionally, but every year. Irrigation makes possible the successful culture of alfalfa, the king of fodders, which insures good returns in dairying and mixed farming.

Irrigation means intensive farming and close settlement with all the advantages of a densely populated agricultural community.

Irrigation in the Canadian Pacific Railway Irrigation Block is no longer an experiment; the years that it has been tried having absolutely demonstrated its success whenever it is intelligently applied.

This is the most liberal offer of irrigated farm land on record. For full particulars apply to:

ALLAN CAMERON, Gen. Supt. of Lands
Canadian Pacific Railway, Dept. of Natural Resources, 908 1st St. E. CALGARY, ALBERTA

ORDER YOUR WINTER'S COAL NOW

The Fuel Comptroller has officially announced that the Western Canadian mines offer the only solution of the fuel problem for the winter of 1918 and 1919 in the western provinces.

In former years the cars used in shipping grain to the lake terminals were available for bringing back anthracite coal. This year, however, our coal must come from the west, and, once the grain movement sets in, it will not be possible to divert cars for coal shipments without serious prejudice to the needs of Britain and her allies in the matter of food supplies.

The opinion is very largely held by those fully informed regarding transportation matters that a grave situation will be brought about next winter if the people of the western provinces do not order their coal supplies immediately.

All who wish to avoid the danger of being without coal next winter should order their supplies as soon as possible.

Agricultural Ass. Meeting Saturday, June 15

The meeting called for last Saturday evening of the stockholders of the Gleichen Agricultural Association did not materialize but another meeting will be held at 8 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, June 15th, in the Town Hall, when it is hoped all interested will attend as an effort will be made not only to arrange the financial affairs of the Association but to consider the advisability of holding a fair this year. A number of our prominent farmers are now taking an active interest in the Association and have promised to do their best to induce others to be present. It is hoped there will be a good attendance of both farmers and townspeople prepared to do all they can to revive the Association and Fair.

Red Cross Social Friday, June 14th

There will be a social evening at the Blackfoot Hospital, on the banks of the Bow River, at the North Camp, on Friday evening, June 14th. It will commence at 6 p.m. and in aid of the funds of the Red Cross society. There will be various attractions and refreshments also will be served on the grounds. Admission 25c.

Messrs. Kenny and McIntosh,

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Agricultural Assoc. meeting Sat.

Remember the Red Cross social at the Blackfoot Hospital tomorrow night—Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Michael are happy over the arrival of a fine baby girl on Monday afternoon, June 10th.

The Blackfoot Indians are enjoying their annual Sun dance and the white folks are doing the usual maneuvering to catch them at it.

The arrival of a fine baby boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Dajerdine on Friday night, June 7th, was cause for rejoicing.

Quite a number of farmers are taking to chance and have started to irrigate. Others claim this is a sure sign of rain in abundance about the time the irrigators complete their work—so sure it be and all will be happy.

Owners of dogs running around town ridding children's dogs are advised to watch out. We know of more than one case where dogs are coiled all ready. Your lag dog may be missing some morning.

Pierard Bros., formerly of Antler, Sask. (chowan), have recently started operation on their big farm eight miles north of Gleichen and during the past three weeks have made great progress in the way of improvement. They are breeding their land with the Nilson Tractor and regardless of the lack of moisture they have continued the work without any difficulty. It is optimistic in their praise of the Gleichen district and when purchasing their land, the selection was made after careful investigation of various parts of the province.

Died—At Cluny, on Monday, June 10th, 1918, Annie, beloved wife of Mr. F. V. Hirst, aged 40 years.

The Catholic cemetery improvements are a great credit to Father Simons and his church members, and reflects sorrowfully on the adjoining Gleichen public cemetery. When so many are ready to admit it is too bad that something worth while is not done to beautify our silent city.

THE KAISER'S PRAYER

From Louisville Republican.
Mine Gott, if you be mine partner!
Vost! Don't know who I am!
I am der German Kaiser.
Der Kaiser Wilhelm.
You know I ripped dem Belgians
Und mit bullete filled Hunsen full.
Und I vill rip France and Italy
Und blow up Johnny Bull.
Now for all der other nations—
I don't give a dam—
If you vill be my Partner
Und vill dot Uncle Sam.
You know I got der submarines
All Europe knows der veil.
But den Yankees got a patent now.
Vos blow dem all to hell.
Now, Gott, if you vill do this Den you and I vill always fight
Und you the King above.
But, Gott, if you oppose it,
Tomorrow night at Bremen
I vill call mine Zeppelins out Und declare War on Heaven. Amen
